

Your child needs a good baby pillow

Baby pillows come in a variety of shapes and sizes each serving a single purpose that is to provide children a comfortable sleep. Most baby pillows are designed to protect the child from SIDS, sudden death infant syndrome, which is a condition where a baby is exposed to choking in sleep due to their position. Nowadays, most pillows are tested and are made on scientific principles which not only provide safety to a child but also help them relax and prevent any future deformities.

Most pillows come in cotton and polyester blend to provide a soft and washable quality to these pillows. There are numerous baby pillows that carry a seal of the American Society of Pediatricians. It should be noticed that Physicians do not recommend a baby pillow for new born but instead prefer it to be used by babies over two months. Still, it is a good idea to consult a Pediatrician before deciding on the best time to use a pillow. Due to a high demand for such pillows, manufacturers now offer add on accessories such as custom built solutions for child seats, coats and cribs. New research in this field is already focusing on the best combination of color and size for baby pillows. Whatever the case, just make sure that the baby pillow you select provide a natural alignment of the spine so that your baby can enjoy a good nights sleep.
