

Popularity Of Blogs Submission

A blog is a website which is regularly updated by an individual or an entity. Because of the various purposes of blogs, the popularity of blogs has increased in the recent years. Some websites update their own blogs while some also allow the users to submit blogs. This allows the users to communicate their opinions to others.

Some blogging websites are informative, some entertaining and some are marketing based.

There are various types of blogs which are generally different on the basis of the type of content and the way the content is delivered or written. To submit blogs; the users can make their free logins. Personal blogs are the first kind of blogs which are similar to the diary or commentary by individuals. It is a traditional type of blog and it is the most common blog.

It is not necessary that personal blogs are visited by the users rather these blogs are maintained by individuals for their own satisfaction. One example of a personal blog is microblogging which is getting very popular. Twitter is a kind of microblogging where you can submit blogs and interact with your friends.

Another famous type of blogs are corporate blogs which can be private or professional and usually people cannot submit blogs on these blog websites. These blogs are meant for marketing, branding or to maintain public relations. These blogs really provide a cheap form of marketing to the companies. Question blogs form another category of blogs where the answers to the questions are given. The individuals submit the questions in the form of a submittal form, via mails or telephones or VOIP.

Some blogs are categorized on the basis of type of media like vlog consists of videos and linklog comprise of links. In some blogs there are shorter posts and the mixed media types are used and they are known as tumbleblogs. Interestingly, one rare kind of blog is Phlog which is hosted on Gopher Protocol. Therefore, there are various kinds of media blogs.

In the submit blogs category, you may also find kinds of blogs on the basis of device which is used to compose the blog like a blog written by a mobile device is known as moblog. Finally, there are different blogs categorized on the basis of genre like political blogs, travel blogs, niche blogs, fashion blogs and music blogs.

Therefore, blog websites provide a way to users to submit blogs according to their interest and skills. One interesting thing about blogs is that there is a comment section at the end of the blogs, where the readers can comment their views after reading the blogs. See these also Blog submission - Submit blog -

About the Author

Similar articles on blogging, try Blogskinny.com.

Source: <http://ArticleMe4.com>